PEACETALKS WITH CREAMFIELDS

Music extravaganza, Creamfields, will support The Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Foundation for Peace at this year's festival at the Daresbury Estate, in Warrington on the Saturday 25th August.

Speaking about the decision to support the charity, co-founder and owner of Creamfields, James Barton, commented: "Creamfields attracts over 40,000 young people to its festival. We wanted to support an organisation that was working with young people in the area and the Foundation is doing some amazing work to reduce intolerance and violence."

Foundation co-founder and Trustee, Wendy Parry, said: "We are delighted that the Foundation has gained the support of such a high profile event. Our organisation has worked with over 15,000 young people since the opening of the Peace Centre in 2000. This support will enable us to expand our remit and continue delivering our programmes to change the lives of young people across the region."

Note to editors:

- The Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Foundation is an educational peace charity set up by Colin and Wendy Parry following the death of their 12-year-old son Tim and 3-year-old Johnathan Ball after the IRA bombed Warrington in 1993. Wilf and Marie, Johnathan's parents, have given their full support to the organisation.
- The Peace Centre (Warrington) is a unique LIVING legacy and memorial to Tim and Johnathan. It was built with local, national and international support, and was opened on March 20, 2000 - the 7th anniversary of the bombing. It is a £3m state of the art, fully equipped learning centre where people develop a passion for peace through participating in our learning programmes.
