Cherie Booth Visits Peace Centre

Today (Friday 26th March), Cherie Booth will visit the charity created after the death of two young boys in an IRA attack on Warrington.

The Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Trust is an educational peace charity which has helped over 7,000 young people through its educational programmes in citizenship, anger management and communication.

Based in Warrington, the Trust delivers unique flexible courses which give young people the opportunity to understand the impact their behaviour and attitude can have on themselves and others.

Cherie Booth will visit the Centre and talk to Chairman Colin Parry and his wife Wendy about the Trust's work.

Date: Friday 26th March
Time: 3.30pm
