Trust honours Peter Deakin

On Wednesday 15th December the Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Trust will pay tribute to Warrington Wolves former chief executive, Peter Deakin, by naming a new I.T room in his honour.

Peter, who was renowned in the rugby world, died in February 2003. He was chief executive at Warrington Wolves from 1999 and also held similar positions at Bradford Bulls and at rugby union club Saracens.

The Trust has converted a room at the Peace Centre into a 6 station I.T suite with funding from the Learning Disability Development Fund and a private donation from The Priory Foundation.

It will provide opportunities for young people participating on Trust programmes to update their communication and I.T skills and also research conflicts around the world when participating on conflict resolution programmes.

Peter's widow, Michelle, will formally open the room and speak to some of the young people who are using the equipment.

The Trust currently has approximately 2,300 young people participating on its programmes each year.
